How does the solution work?

At the front end

Experian Data Quality for Salesforce integrates easily into your existing Salesforce CRM environment and attempts to correct, validate and standardise each address, email and mobile number upon entry.

Address validation at the point of capture requires a minimal amount of information required for a full, complete address to be returned.

Email validation instantly detects format and syntax errors, verifies that a domain exists and can receive mail, and performs a variety of other checks to ensure deliverability.

Mobile phone validation checks U.K., U.S., CAN., and AUS. phone numbers through a series of algorithms, flagging up area code and format errors before parsing and standardising the number according to the regional number plan.

Behind the scenes

Correction is also available in batch mode whereby users can select to run batch audits to facilitate larger database updates, perfect for cleaning list imports or running regular database audits.

Web-to-lead

A custom trigger also watches for each new web-to-lead created and validates contact data within seconds of submission. Validation in this mode ensures proper lead routing and effective sales and marketing follow-up.

Verification and tracking

A new validation status field populates automatically and allows users and Salesforce administrators to track all records that have been reviewed and validated. Field reports can be set-up to track any contact data that could not be validated or to run regular data quality reviews.

Available data sets

In addition to validating contact data, Experian Data Quality also offers the ability to append relevant grid data, geo-demographic profiling information through MOSAIC and other regional specific address elements, to enrich Salesforce data and improve sales and marketing intelligence.
